In Communities (<https://religion.utoronto.ca/category/community/grad/>), News (<https://religion.utoronto.ca/category/news/>)

Anthony Scott (<https://religion.utoronto.ca/people/graduate-students/#veale>) recently won the CSSR's 2015-2016 G

Scott won the PhD award with his paper, "The Making of Canadian Origin Myths: A 19th-century Canada participated in the process. The committee argued for the importation of a new narrative. The Commission, writing, "the paper is a call for decolonization and a new narrative."

Veale's paper "Refutatio Romana: The Political Dimension of Tacitus' Annales" focused on the otherness in Tacitus, relying on a wide range of primary and secondary sources on Plutarch's and Tacitus' writings. The depth of anthropological, postcolonial and literary analysis and well-constructed argument is accomplished with a location. This paper emphasises the ongoing need for s Studies.”

Congratulations to both!
